Assogna Endodontics' expert team is devoted to preserving a patient's natural teeth through advanced root canal treatment. Endodontic specialists Denise Assogna, DDS, Luz Mejia, DDS, and Joseph Blondin, DMD, utilize the latest techniques and technologies to save teeth that otherwise would be extracted. "Root canals are all we do," Dr. Assogna says. "Many patients are told that they need their tooth extracted because of many issues including a failing root canal. Most of the time we can correct it and save their tooth. This also saves patients time and money."

With surgical operating microscopes and several years of extra training, the Assogna team can see inside the tooth during procedures, detecting and correcting many problems that often lead to tooth loss.

Dr. Assogna sums up the practice saying, "We love our patients and strive to be experts in our field and keep up with all the latest training and technology. We recommend that people seek a second opinion so they can save their natural tooth because once it's gone, it is gone forever!"
